Like past years, we reached out beyond our newsroom to get feedback from many sources to honor those who consistently help to broker these high-profile real estate deals, and also the new players who landed important work. These are the heavy hitters helping to buoy the once struggling sector, and we congratulate them.

There were others who likely could have made this year's list, as South Florida has long produced its share of leaders with a successful body of work in commercial real estate. Still, we feel this list is an accurate snapshot of the influential players in the region's flourishing real estate industry today.
